Response provided by the European Commission:

Yes. According to Article 9(9) and 10(2) of Commission Delegated Directive 2017/593, any clients' sustainability-related objectives shall be considered when specifying the type(s) of clients whose needs, characteristics and objectives the product is compatible with ('positive target market assessment'). This also applies to the identification of any group(s) of clients whose needs, characteristics and objectives the product is not compatible with ('negative target market assessment'). In practical terms, whether, and if so, which sustainability-related objectives may be relevant for the identification of the negative target market for a particular product that does not consider sustainability factors, will depend on the characteristics of the product. Indeed, firms are required to consider whether the product would be incompatible with some sustainable related objectives but this evaluation might conclude, in some specific situations, that there is no incompatibility with those objectives, so no negative target market would be determined in those specific situations for the criterion "sustainability related objective". Reversely, in other situations the consideration should lead to the identification of a negative target market in relation to the product's sustainability-related objectives.
