Emma Lokko, Head of Market Structure ESMA,
Susquehanna

Emma Lokko is the Head of Market Structure for Susquehanna in Europe, a leading global market making firm with its European headquarters in Ireland. She is responsible for advocating for market structural change in EU financial markets, managing the trading impact of regulatory change and supporting Susquehanna's trading desks.

Ms Lokko has 30 years of experience in global financial markets having worked across all areas of the trading lifecycle from front to middle & back-office in the US, UK and Europe.

Prior to her current role, Ms Lokko worked in a wide range of areas within the financial ecosystem including managing a brokerage trading desk (including risk management oversight) that specialised in list derivatives trading by retail and institutional clients early in her career; setting up DMA, sponsored access electronic trading and market access solutions (EU, US and Asian markets) for a US derivatives clearing firm; working as a management consultant for international investment banks in London; and working on back-office securities lending, corporate actions, clearing and settlement, new business and expansion projects in Ireland.

She is an elected member of the Executive Committee for the FIA European Principal Traders Association (FIA EPTA).

Ms Lokko holds a Bachelor's Degree in Economics and a Master's Degree in Economics and Finance from UCD and Maynooth University in Ireland.
