

Rainer Lenz

Rainer Lenz is chair of the board of directors of Finance Watch in Brussels. Finance Watch is a civil society, research and advocacy organisation working to make “finance serve society”. The NGO represents the interests of consumers, end-users and more broadly citizens, in the field of financial services and its regulation. <http://www.finance-watch.org/home>

As a professor, he lectures international finance at the University of Applied Sciences Bielefeld, Germany for more than 10 years. He also has extensive working experience as an investment banker and as economic adviser to a German MP. His fields of research are FinTechs and financial market and banking regulation. He has published several articles on financial topics that have appeared in banking journals and newspapers. He holds a diploma in Economics from the University of Bonn and has a Ph.D. degree from the University of Karlsruhe. His visiting academic positions include the American University in Washington, D.C., the Universidad Iberoamericana, Puebla, Mexico and the University of West Florida in Pensacola, Florida. <https://www.fh-bielefeld.de/fb5/lenz>