

Prof. Dr. Veerle COLAERT

Veerle Colaert holds the chair for financial law at KU Leuven University and is co-director of the Jan Ronse Institute for Company and Financial Law.

She graduated from KU Leuven University in 2000 and was an attorney at the Brussels' Bar from 2000-2005. In 2006 she was granted the E.G. de Barys scholarship for research in the financial sector by the Flemish Fund for Scientific research (FWO). In March 2010 she obtained her PhD on the basis of research on the relationship between the MiFID rules of conduct, consumer law and national civil law.

Veerle has published numerous articles on different aspects of financial regulation and is a regular speaker at international and national conferences. Her main research interests relate to investor protection, deposit guarantee, cross-sectoral financial regulation, and the interplay between different pieces of financial regulation and between financial regulation and consumer law.

She currently teaches advanced courses on "European Financial Regulation" and "European Banking and Investment Services Law" as well as courses on Belgian commercial and company law. She heads the Business Law option of the KU Leuven LL.M programme and is coordinator of the law faculty for the interdisciplinary Master in Economics, Law and Business. She organises quarterly "Legal Clinics" on topical issues of European Financial Law.

As a MiFID expert, Veerle has been an Insurance Committee advisor at the Belgian Financial Services and Markets Authority since October 2012.
