

Hanzo van Beusekom has been a member of the Executive Board of the Dutch Authority for the Financial Markets (AFM) since 1 June 2018. Within the board, he is responsible for the supervision of capital markets, audit firms, legal affairs, and the AFM's programme on data- and technology-driven supervision.

From 2011 until 1 June 2018, Van Beusekom was a partner at a strategic consultancy specialising in strengthening supervision. He has supported more than twenty supervisory organisations in the Netherlands and internationally.

Hanzo van Beusekom previously worked at the AFM from 2003 to 2010, as head of the Supervision Group for major financial institutions and head of Strategic Analysis. Before that, he was a strategy consultant at The Boston Consulting Group. Upon his return at the AFM, Van Beusekom focussed on cross-sector supervision and renewal, with a particular focus on data- and technology-driven supervision. From 1 September 2019 to 1 February 2020, he was acting chair of the Executive Board.

He has a particular interest in contributing to organisations that create public value. In this, his focus is on change that enhances these organisations' effectiveness. Van Beusekom studied economics in Amsterdam and obtained an MBA at INSEAD in Fontainebleau.
